TERMS AND CONDITIONS

Definitions

Average Temperature

Average Temperature means the average of the high and low temperatures for the next calendar day forecast by an independent weather service used by Company, for Peoria, Decatur, Belleville or Marion for Customers located in the Northern, Central, South Central, or Southern regions, respectively, of the Company's service area. Company will make forecast temperatures for each day available to Customers on the internet at amerenillinois.com by 9 a.m. on the preceding day.

* Winter Demand

Winter Demand means Customer's maximum usage for any Gas Day when Average Temperature for that day is equal to or is below 25 degrees Fahrenheit occurring on any such day in the 12 consecutive billing periods ending with the current billing period.

Adjusted Winter Demand

Adjusted Winter Demand means Customer's Winter Demand less Customer's Winter Delivery Allowance, if any.

* Winter Delivery Allowance

Winter Delivery Allowance means an amount of gas delivery that Customer is entitled to receive on a Gas Day when Average Temperature is equal to or is below 25 degrees Fahrenheit without Customer incurring a Demand Charge. Company will determine Customer's Winter Delivery Allowance at Customer's request. If so requested Company will determine at Company's sole discretion the amount of distribution delivery capacity that is available to Customer while still meeting the delivery capacity requirements of other customers. At Company's sole discretion, Company will generally limit Customer's Winter Delivery Allowance to no more than the amount of additional delivery capacity for a local system reinforcement installed on Customer's behalf for which Customer provided a contribution.
